On last evening Private Farno of B company, Sixteenth infantry, was married to Miss Mary Brewster, of Salt Lake city. There was a reception at the residence of the bride's parents. Quite a few of the enlisted men of the post were present. May their pathway through life be an even one, surrounded by the flowers of happiness and be one continuous honey moon. That the young couple have our best wishes cannot be gainsaid. Here's looking at you friend Farno—Good luck, old boy.

Every soldier in his enlistment takes his turn in his company kitchen. As a rule the cooks are very good ones, and who, by long experience know how to make both ends meet in cooking and serving army rations. There was at one time some talk in regard to enlisting "cooks" especially for that purpose. It would be well to revive that idea and let some enthusiastic friend of the army push a bill through authorizing such. At present cooks receive a compensation of 85 per month in addition to the regular army pay.

MOUNT PLEASANT MATTERS.

Last Sunday afternoon we enjoyed a very refreshing rainstorm, which lasted about five hours. While it did a vast amount of good, considerable damage has also been done to much of the heavy grain. Fields of heavy grain lying adjacent to the west cedar bills suffered by the water coming down in streams, carrying mud and debris of every kind before it, and distributing it on the fields of grain. One gentleman's field is reported to have two feet of mud and debris deposited on his grain. The municipal court, which is the department of the judicial system which comes more nearly in contact with the police force, is held in the Suffolk county court house. A cut of the present building is an illustration of this article. This court house. A cut of the present building is an illustration of this article. This is a plain building of granite, with a fine Doric portico fronting upon Court street, which in colonial days was called Queen street. The basement is occupied in part by the Tomits, or city prison, which is merely a place of detention for prisoners while awaiting examination or trial. This jail is in charge of a superinte dent with several assistants, and a matron is also employed, who has an oversight of the female prisoners.

The court house stands in the center of Court square, and is surrounded by an open space. It was regarded when built as an imposing structure and well suited to its purpose; but it was long ago outgrown, and as above stated a new and magnificent building is in course of crection.

It is somewhat remarkable that the site covered by the city prison has always been used for a lockup since the earliest days of the colony. In the first allotment of limid at the founding of the town, more than 250 years ago, this spot was set apart for a jail, and here the jail has always remained. Probably the Oldest Inhabitant. Census Taker Bethune, of Milledgeville, Ga., in discharging his duties one day recently ran across the oldest inhabitant, and was puzzled for awhile as to what enored, living in the northern part of the city, gave her age as 121 years. Mr. Bethune questioned her for some time and discov-ered that the old woman was a regular encyclopedia of the early days of American independence. She know all about it—was there and saw it. She remembered Washington and all of the fathers. She remem bered their habits and eccentricities, and said that she was married and had children when Wushington died. Her oldest living child is 88 years old, and since its birth she has been blessed with twenty-seven others. She is evidently not less than 110 years and may be 121, as she says.

Had a Lizard in His Stomach For years John Lingard, of La Porte, Ind., suffered from what the doctors said was tumor of the stomach. Lately he grew much worse and was taken to his bed. For days he was in excruciating spasms, in which he writhed in a terrible manner. One morning after a terrible choking and strangling attack he vomited up a large black lizard. It was dead and partially encysted. A close examination of the reptile showed that it had no eyes. It was also defective in the limbs and muscles of locomotion. This showed it to have grown from a mere germ in the man's stemach. Mr. Lingard lived but a few hours after the delivery of the lizard. He died from blood poisoning.

Fatal Result of a Foolish Wager. The other night Homer E. Newton, a farmer of West-Richfield, O., died a terri-ble death. Three weeks previously on a weger with friends he are twenty-six hard boiled eggs at a meal. Medical aid was unavailing. He lingered in terrible pain without food. It is believed that the first building for the detention of evil doers was built of heavy logs, with narrow openings high up for windows. But of this there is no authentic record.

The work of the Bostonoffleers, as shown by the report of the board of police, was remarkably efficient last year. Twice did the force receive the thanks of the mayor for especially valuable service. The first of these occasions was the visit of President Harrison in August, 1239, when the second was upon the occasion of the large and disastrous fire which occurred last Thanksgiving. On this day a detail of 549 men was sent to the fire, comprising about five-sixths of the entire force. This large force was admirably handled, and its conduct won the thanks not only of the mayor but of the board of fire commissioners as well.

Boston has a system of pensions for aged or disabled policemen. At present there are eighty names upon the rolls. The majority of the dependents are paid $200.000. Under the construction given to the act of $30,000. In addition to this system there is a police charitable fund which amounts to nearly $200,000, all of which is carefully invested. Last year there were fifty-four beneficiaries. The Police Relief association also has an invested fund of about $34,000, and last year disbursed nearly $12,000.

tracted the step the better it would be for the people.

Dawes, from the committee on appropritions, reported the Indian appropriation bill carrying an appropriation of $7,153,811. Discussion was resumed and Piatt argued in support of the amendment and in general defense of the desert land law, swamp land law and other land laws of the United States. He favored the repeal of the irrigation law, and said that its retention meant that not a single acre of public lands affected by it would ever be entered by any homestead settler and charged that was the object contemplated by the shrewd man who drew up that prevision in the conference committee. The discussion continued until 6 o'clock, when the Senate adjourned without action on the pending amendment. The Use of Lake Front Granted.

Amendments requiring the use of no less than 150 acres requiring the use of no less than 150 acres there, involving the filling in of at least one hundred acres of the lake free of expense to the city, was adopted. In some quarters it is predicted the amendment will prevent the use of Lake Front and that the fair will be held entirely in Jackson park, six miles from the centre of the city.

A two hundred and fifty pound colored woman got into the Fifth avenue stage and insisted on riding for nothing. Expostulation did no good, so the driver called a policeman to put her out.

"So you won't pay your fare!" said the policeman, looking at her from head to foot.

"No, I'll die first. They should have given me a transfer."

"But I am obliged to put you out if you don't pay your fare," and the policeman, looking at the policeman.
